Isaac Johnson Celebrated and Then Fell Into a Station.

ONE OF THE JUDGE'S FRIENDS

She Knew Him Even if She Was Drunk, But His Honor Failed to Acknowledge the Acquaintance-Disorderlies and Tramps Made Up the Police Court Procession.

Sixteen disorderlies and drunks, eight ragrants and six women, three of whom were white, tells the story presented in Judge Kimbali's police court this morn-log.

The first before his honor was Thomas "Judge, I was sick yesterday and had to take liquor and I took a little too to take liquor and I took a little too much," he explained.

"But the officer says you are drinking "But the officer says you are trinking all the time," replied his honor. "Well, judge, I have to take a little stimulant. I'm a nervous man." "Oh, I don't believe in any such stories."

"But, your houor, if you'll let me off this time, I'll--" "Yes, I know you will," exclaimed the tourt, "but I'll take your bonds this time." Theodore Scribner, another white man, and John Williams and Henry Johnson, two colored men pleaded guilty of being trunk and disorderly, and went down for

John endeavored to explain to the court low it was that he didn't use had lan-

THEY BOTH SWORE.

You see, it was like dis. I works in lime all day, and can't see very well at night, and dis fellow had his clothes in my wheelbarrow. I took 'em out and put 'em in a barrel, and den he cussed at me."

Well, I guess you swore at him, too. "No. sir: I didn't, sir."

"Yes, sir; how much, sir?" 'Five dollars," repeated his honor "Thank you, sir, very much," and John owed his way out. Isaac Johnson was intoxicated last night. Isaac received a little inheritance last week, and has been celebrating. He blamed it all on another man, and said;

"When I got up dere to see him, he that almost set me crazy. "Well, you know better from your past experience than to go to drinking," put in the judge. "Well, jedge, I tells you de fact truf, sir, I ain't been drunk for a long time, dat's de fact truf, sholy." "Well, I'll make it five dollars, but It ought to be ten."

A little diversion was then created by the appearance of a woman, who was not town on the regular programme. She was drank and was being brought in from the street, probably just arrested. When she spied his honor she yelled: "There's Judge Kemball; I knows the jedge and I won't pass him." "I won't pass him, I tell you," she re peated, as she was arged along

SHE KNEW THE JUDGE. The judge, however, did not appreciate ried into the cells, whereupon Officer Flynn picked her up bodily and carried her, still protesting in a loud voice and claiming the cells beyond. Frank Gallagher, who sells papers to helpsupporthismomer, and is about thirteen years old, stopped on the outside of a crowd of boys to see what was going on. They were shooting craps and Frank got

"He was selling papers, your bonor," said counsel for the young prisoner.
"Yes, but paper boys are very fond of shooting crap," said the judge. "He was selling his papers at the time

"No, he wasn't. The officer can't catch John L. Stevens, an old man, who did not seem to be able to hear or see, was pile to sleep on when an officer picked him up. The poor old man was trying to find his way to Columbia, S. C., where, he claimed, he had a brother, who was an architect.

The old man was on the verge of his secand childhood and understood very few The judge laid the matter over and or-

James Sutton, James Murray, Joseph Wallack and Henry Morrison, a quartet of white tramps, were found in the Baltimore and Ohio sand house.

"The same old game again," said hi "They are all belong in Washington, our honor," said the officer.

"What did you sleep in that house for?"
"Well, I'll tell you, judge. I was late last night and couldn't get in the house," said Sutton, and the rest of the crowd took up the same cue and got off.

Swindler Wanneck Jailed.

Oscar Wanneck, indicted by the grand jury a few days ago for false pretenses, and afterward apprehended in Richmond, Ya., was brought to this city yesterday and committed to jail by Judge Cole.

Wanneck said he was unprepared to of-fer bond. He is the man who, as previously told in The Morning Times, made several firms of this city the alleged victims of a swindle, in which he sold brick dust for

The new sanctuary hamp for St. Patrick's Church has just arrived from New York and was put in place yesterday. Mr. D. Colombani, the ecclesiastical artist of New York city, the maker and designer of the lamp, personally superintended its

It is a work of art in the finestallegorical etyle, and is one of the triumphs of Rev. John Gloyd's administration.

The beautiful new lamp issuspended from the central arch of the chancel by a bronze cable and is composed of two globes. The upper and larger is a great red sphere covered by an embossed brass bowl. In this large globe is a smaller one of opaque glass.

The large globe will be illumined by numerous and beautiful designs of electric lamps, and signifies the love of Christ, the light of the world. light of the world.

The small opaque ball will also be lighted by electricity, and is intended to symbolize that now we see the "glory of God as through a glass but darkly." These are the central ideas.

The brass globe, the great red light, is subcosed with figures is presenting the

The brass globe, the great red light, is embossed with figures representing the pious and faithful. The entire surface it beautifully carved with wheat sheaves, vine clusters, and doves, portraying the mysteries of the sacraments of penance and the eucharist.

Springing from the rim of the bowl are even angels, raising aloft their hands and holding palm branches, the symbol of triumphant faith. A large electrically lighted crown connects with the main cable. The whole lamp is eight feet six inches high and the idea is that it should represent in artistic simile the grades by which the Christian soul attains the perfect peace of Jesus crown of all saints.

CHAPTER OF ACCIDENTS. Several Persons Slightly Burt in Various Ways.

William Brent, a colored laborer, fell from a scaffold at No. 536 Sixth street southeast yesterday afternoon and severely injured his leg on a picket fence. Little Aubury Ritchie fell from an apple tree on his father's place near Forestville, Mill, Fairfax County, Va., white coming into town with a wagon load of chickens, eggs and butter, was struck by westbound eggs entirely demolished. Man, horses, thickens and wagon were uninjured.

John Frass and Melon Grey were thrown out of a wagon in a runaway yesterday afternoon and Frass received a bad contu-sion of the right shoulder. The accident happened at Massachusetts avenue and

James Neill, a colored laborer, working in sewer trench, was rendered unconscious for a while yesterday by the falling of a derrick wheel upon his head.

Albert Floyd, No. 937 M street northwest, and Norman Pruitt, No. 105 Sixth stree northeast, collided while riding bicycles at the corner of Ninth and M streets about 7:30 o'clock last evening. Floyd was ren dered unconscious by the shock, but soon nose and a broken collar bone.

McKendree Epworth League. The M-Kendree Chapter of the Epworth League last night held its regular monthly meeting in the Sunday-school room of the church, Mr. F. T. Israel presiding. A committee of three consisting of Misses Famile Meeks and Almie Davis and Mr Straet was appointed to represent the Epworthians in the Anti-Safoon League. A very enjoyable musical programme was rendered. Prof. Classical the Y. Mr. C. A.; Mr. Charles F. Bun. Mr. George Harvey and others participated.
